*For most GIH Funding Partners, this is the annual qualifying distribution. For more details, or if your organization isn't subject to a qualifying distribution, please contact GIH staff.

Professional philanthropic advisors pay by following one of two methods:

- An advisory firm or select members of the firm, whether one or more individuals, may join GIH as the representative of a client foundations or funds. The client organization will join as a regular Funding Partner and pay standard GIH dues based on its annual health giving. The associated advisor(s) will enjoy full Funding Partner status. No other staff at the advisory firm will have access to GIH programs or resources under this option. (validation: written verification of the professional firm's activities in managing the charitable funds, fund asset levels, and annual health giving).
- An advisory firm may become a GIH Funding Partner and give its staff access to programs and resources. The firm determines its contribution by multiplying GIH's prevailing individual fee [currently $1,000] by the firm's number of FTE professional positions. Trustees and staff of the firm's client foundations will not be considered GIH Funding Partners under this method (validation: a written description of the advisory firm's routine services and offerings). Professional references may be requested. Firms with three or more individuals wishing to participate in GIH may contact Beth Harris for a group discount (bharris@gih.org).
